A Year in Review

A Bias for Action

It feels like every day, we experience seismic tremors and shifts in the fabric of the world that we thought we knew and was stable. This means uncertainty is the new normal. Amidst all this sudden change of policies and funding, we saw that food insecurity is not some distant issue over there. It is a daily and worsening reality for our neighbors, families, and friends. There are many local organizations that are working tirelessly to ensure that no one goes hungry but the more chaotic the times, the greater the need. It's not in PVF's DNA to sit aside.

We are wired for immediate response. When like-minded and generous partners like Oakland Thrives are ready to roll up their sleeves and just 'do' in moments of crisis, like the eve before SNAP benefits were frozen for the first time, we act fast. PVF opened the Alameda County Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund within 48 hours and distributed $1M in grants to grassroots organizations who do the good and hard work of delivering food directly to those in need.

Beyond food insecurity, as all the needs have grown, so have we. In 2025, PVF and our fund partners distributed $43.5M in grants. We're grateful every day to get to do the work we do. We have a bias for action. It's always been in our DNA and we will promise to preserve and hold tight, this most important value.

Programs

We aspire to transform philanthropy and make it more responsive and collaborative to meet the needs of our community. We identify needs that can be met with philanthropic support, and then we devise program ideas to help tackle the issues head on. From this drive to address unmet needs came the idea of immediate-response grants, in which we provide funds within a 48-hour turnaround. We have established a variety of immediate-response grant programs, benefiting teachers as well as social workers and juvenile court judges who work with youth in foster care.

Foundations, individual donors, and businesses partner with PVF to establish unique immediate-response grant programs because of our grassroots giving expertise. We have created and administered programs for the following donors:

Emily Benatar Foundation
Frank H. & Eva B. Buck Fdn
The California Endowment
David & Lucile Packard Fdn
Eucalyptus Foundation
Flora Family Foundation
GIRLBOSS Foundation
Walter & Elise Haas Fund

Heising-Simons Foundation

Meta Local Community Fund
John & Marcia Goldman Foundation

Peery Family Foundation
Sand Hill Foundation
San Francisco Foundation
Sobrato Philanthropies

2025 Donor Advised Grants: $11,653,535

“At PVF, we recognize the potential of the philanthropic dollar and seek to maximize its impact by responding creatively to requests and community needs. When we discover outstanding people doing outstanding charitable work, we take the opportunity to develop relationships, make introductions to donors and invite donors to tackle new giving programs. Donors benefit from our philanthropic expertise, extensive knowledge of the nonprofit community and experience in turning ideas into action.”

Alameda County Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund

We began PVF to do something different — to bring joy, simplicity, trust and effectiveness to grantmaking. We knew the answer was not more — more paper, more procedures, more obstacles, more time. We place high trust in outstanding individuals and programs, demonstrate flexibility and creativity in grant-making, and take the initiative in providing funding when it is needed.

When SNAP – the federal government’s food assistance program – was frozen on November 1, 2025 for the first time since it began over six decades ago, a group of donors reached out to PVF to administer an immediate response fund. In Alameda County alone, 166,000 residents rely on SNAP funding each month to purchase food. While the Alameda County Community Food Bank and its 370+ partner organizations immediately stepped up to bridge the gap, they could not do it alone. Within 48 hours, PVF opened the Alameda County Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund.

The Alameda County Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund was open to any Alameda County nonprofit that was distributing food to SNAP recipients, with a priority for neighborhood-based organizations serving children, elders, immigrants, and people with disabilities and organizations who were intentionally partnering with other organizations to build upon existing capacity and infrastructure wherever possible.

A total $1M in grants up to $15,000 were distributed to 75 grassroots organizations who were and continue to do the good and hard work of delivering food directly to those in need.

PVF’s ability to respond quickly is made possible by the trust and confidence of our community and we were honored to have been a part of this initiative.

"Alameda County Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund funding helped us prioritize equitable access by reaching seniors, families with children, and individuals experiencing housing instability or fixed incomes. By stabilizing our food assistance operations during critical periods, the Rapid Response Food Resilience Fund directly contributed to improved food security and reduced stress for over 1,000 community members during times of crisis. 86% of these recipients reported to be within the 0-30% of AMI [Area Median Income] and 44% ages 55 and older." - The Davis Street Community Center, Inc. in San Leandro

Designated Fund Disbursements

In the spirit of expanding philanthropy and promoting outstanding charitable work, PVF serves as the fiscal sponsor for projects that do charitable work, but do not yet have their tax exempt status. PVF's Designated Funds allow multiple donors to receive a tax deduction for contributing to a charitable program. A Designated Fund provides donors with flexibility, enabling them to target support for innovative ideas. PVF manages the funds and prepares financial reports for the program leaders.
